

I listen to KLOVE radio on an FM translator in my area--near Grass Valley, CA. Loss of the ability of KLOVE to use a translator in my area would greatly diminish my ability to enjoy quality positive programming. KLOVE is non-commercial and listener supported, and the degree of listener support is an indicator of how much the public enjoys and appreciates their programming. I also listen to another FM radio station, KXPR, a classical station which also uses translators to provide service. Both these stations have high quality programming and the loss of their ability to use translators would seriously impact the quality of life in the areas they serve.
